

White Girl Is Reinstated at Central High

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — A visit by a New York Times woman reporter to integrated Central High School erupted Tuesday night into a dispute between she and School Supt. Virgil Blossom on whether she had violated an agreement on the tour.

The question came up at a news conference called by Blossom to report that Sammie Dean Parker, 16, expelled from the school Feb. 28, had been re-instated.

Miss Gertrude Samuels visited Central High last Friday. She talked with Principal Jess W. Matthews, Assistant Principal for Girls Mrs. Elizabeth Huckaby and others on the staff. She also took pictures in the school library, a chemistry class and an algebra class.

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — Little Rock School Board said Tuesday night it has re-instated a 16-year-old white girl expelled from integrated Central High school effective today.

Meanwhile, a lawsuit filed by the father of the girl, Sammie Dean Parker, was dismissed by U.S. District Court.

School Supt. Virgil T. Blossom said at a news conference the Parker girl had asked re-instatement and it had been approved by the school board.

The girl was one of the early student opponents to integration of Central last fall by nine Negroes. She was expelled in connection with distribution of cards which read: "One down—eight to go." The cards obviously referred to expulsion of Minnijean Brown.

Oral Arguments in Integration Appeal Cases

ST. LOUIS (UP) — A panel of three federal judges today considered a constitutional challenge of President Eisenhower's power to use troops in enforcing racial integration at Little Rock, Ark., Central High School.

The challenge was contained in one of three cases brought before the U.S. District Court of Appeals here. The judges heard oral arguments in all three cases Tuesday and took them under advisement. There was no indication when a ruling would be handed down.

All of the suits appealed decisions by Federal Judge Ronald N. Davies which resulted in the integration of the Little Rock school last fall.

In one case, Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus appealed Davies' ruling forbidding the governor from using National Guard troops to keep the Negro children from attending the high school.

The other suits involved the President's rights to send troops to enforce a Federal Court order calling for integration, and an injunction by Davies preventing enforcement of an Arkansas state court ruling forbidding integration.

On the troop issue, Little Rock attorney Kenneth Coffelt, termed the sending of federal troops to Arkansas "a disgrace to civilized society."

Coffelt appeared on behalf of Mrs. Margaret Jackson, president of the Segregationist League of Central High Mothers, who contended the constitutional rights of herself and her two daughters were violated by the troops.

Coffelt argued that Federal Court rulings are not laws which the President can execute under the terms of the Constitution. He said only Congress can make such laws.

Federal attorneys contended the term law in the Constitution is a general one which includes court decisions.

In the Faubus suit, attorneys for the governor claimed federal courts lacked jurisdiction in questioning the discretion of a governor acting according to state law.

The lawyers, Thomas Harper and Key L. Matthews, also charged that Davies erred in refusing to disqualify himself in the Faubus case. Davies, a Fargo, N. D., resident, refused to convene a three-man court to hear the governor's original case. The attorneys said a three-man court at that situation was clearly mandatory.

In the third case, an appeal of Mrs. Clyde Thompson of Little Rock, lawyers argued Davies exceeded his authority in blocking a state court injunction to prevent the enrolling of Negro students.

Dulles Says U. S. Would Attend Summit Meet

By ARNOLD DIBBLE, United Press Staff Correspondent
MANILA (UP) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said today the United States was willing to attend a "summit" meeting if there was hope of reaching a disarmament agreement and of relaxing world tension.

Dulles, in a major policy pronouncement preceding a Big Three foreign ministers conference here, told the SEATO nations the present world tension has "brought us close to the sparks of world war on more than one occasion."

Dulles met today with French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd to consolidate their stand on Russia's propaganda-driven calls for a summit conference and to study the threatening situation in Indonesia.

Later, a spokesman for the U.S. delegation said the Big Three foreign ministers had agreed to make new proposals within the next 10 days for a summit conference with Russia.

The spokesman said the three had agreed on the procedures which will be submitted to the NATO council in Paris for consideration before they are offered to Moscow.

The procedures, it was learned, would include reiteration of the Western stand that adequate preparations for a summit session can be made at a foreign ministers conference, through normal diplomatic channels, or a combination of both methods.

Dulles also told his nervous Asian Allies attending a SEATO conference here the United States has no intention of softening its strong stand against the recognition of Red China and its admission to the United Nations.

The foreign ministers look time out from the SEATO meeting to hold their first Big Three meeting since the NATO session in Paris last winter.

Mild Setback on President's Disability

LUPPI 1st Lead Congress UP40
By UNITED PRESS

The administration suffered a setback today in its attempt to win congressional approval of a proposed constitutional amendment on presidential disability.

The House Judiciary Committee voted against changing the Constitution to spell out how presidential authority shall be exercised if the chief executive becomes disabled and cannot carry on his duties.

The committee's action backed up the position of House Democratic leaders that it is not necessary to settle the problem by the lengthy process of amending the Constitution. They contend it can be handled by a simple congressional bill.

Other congressional news: Taxes: President Eisenhower and Republican congressional leaders agreed at a White House conference to postpone a decision for at least a month on whether a tax cut is needed to jolt the nation out of recession.

FCC: The attorney for resigned Federal Communications Commissioner Richard A. Mack said Mack will appear before congressional investigators Wednesday for further questioning about his finances.

Rackets: The Senate Rackets Committee's investigation of the Kohler Co. strike delved into a controversy over whether the beating of a non-striker by a union man resulted in the non-striker's death. William Bersch Jr. testified that the beating his father suffered in 1954 started a decline in the older man's health that led to his death a year later.

Senators: Rep. William S. Broomfield (R-Mich.) proposed a constitutional amendment that would strip governors of their power to appoint senators when vacancies develop. His amendment would require a special election.

Military Pay: The chief of naval operations, Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, told a Senate Armed Services subcommittee that a military pay raise was needed to encourage more enlistments.

Reserves: The House Armed Services Committee unanimously opposed Pentagon plans to trim the Army National Guard and reserves by 10 per cent. The committee recommended that the Army's budget be upped by $7 million dollars so that Guard and reserve units can be maintained at present strength.

11 Long Term Prisoners in Escape

FORT PILLOW, Tenn. (UP)—Eleven long-term prisoners overpowered a warden, broke from a lightly guarded prison camp dormitory and scattered along the banks of the Mississippi River Monday night.

Three of the fugitives were captured by early morning, including Jim R. Collins and William Cary. The convicts overpowered Deputy Night Warden Omar Teague, slashed one of his wrists and used his key to get out of the dormitory. Then they raced across the yard and vaulted a 16-foot fence to freedom.

Warden Joe Barfield said a 50-man posse caught Eugene Tucker, a life-terminer, about a mile west of the prison. Tucker was quoted as saying the 11 had carefully planned the break, and had broken up into small groups after getting over the fence.

Barfield said all 11 are long-termers with good behavior records which entitled them to be held in a minimum security camp. But he said they were "not exactly on their honor."

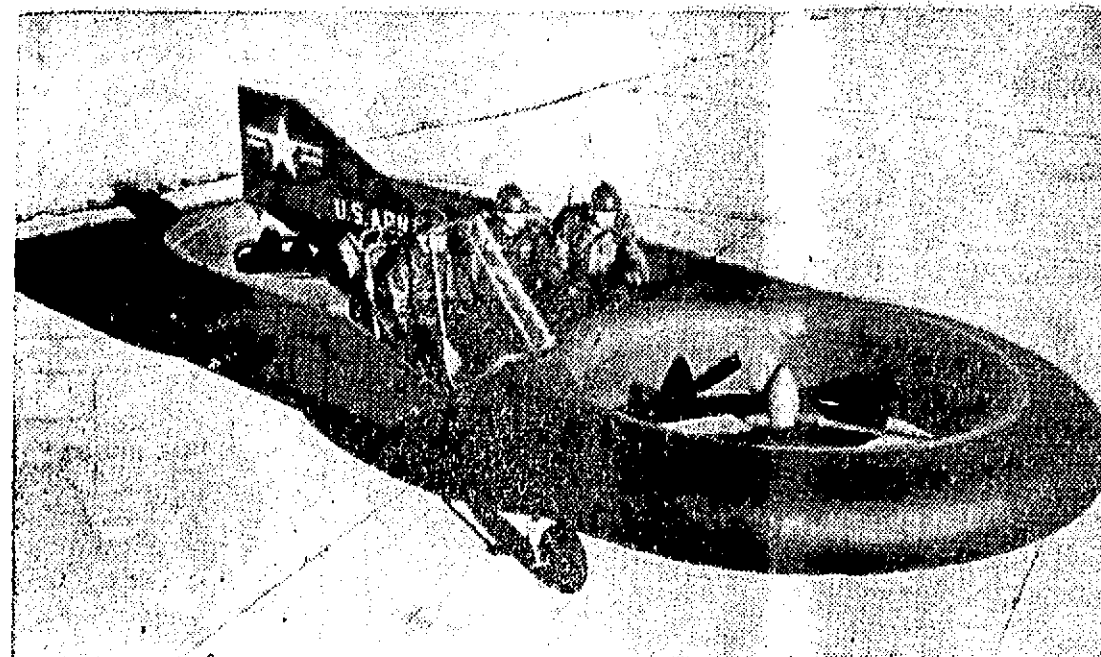

Apparently there were no guns among the escapees, but prison authorities said it was believed all were armed with knives.

Railway Will Try to Get Out Engine

TWO RIVERS, Wis. (UP)—Railway officials today planned new efforts to raise the wreckage — and possibly the "ghost" engineer — of a switch engine which plunged into Lake Michigan.

Tangled wreckage and murky water Monday prevented divers from affixing cables to the huge diesel buried under a boxcar which followed it on its eerie ride to the lake bottom. Divers also were unable to clear up the mystery of whether an unknown person went to his death with the train.

The train made its wild run across five miles of switching tracks during the pre-dawn darkness last Friday. Starting at Manitowish, it thundered into Two Rivers, knifed through the steel gorges of a coal dock, jumped a bumper at the end of the line and one of the nine colored students. Blossom refused to answer any questions of newsmen and neighbor the girl nor her father, Jay D. Parker, would comment on the action.

The FBI has been called in to help railway officials determine the cause of the mystery ride. Railroad spokesmen said "some one who knew about engines" had to be at the throttle.

Judge J. Mitchell Cockhill dismissed the suit brought last week by Parker on behalf of his daughter and which sought her re-instatement. The case had been set for trial today.

Blossom handed newsmen a copy of a letter signed by the Parker girl.

"I respectfully ask you to rescind the order expelling me from Central High School," the letter said.

It added that following a temporary suspension, Blossom had given her an opportunity to return to school by proving a change in her attitude and a willingness to conform to rules.

"If you will re-instate me," the letter said, "I promise in the future to conform to the rules. I understand that if I violate the promises contained in this letter, the order expelling me from Central High School may be re-instituted."

The girl's father added a note that the letter was signed with his consent and approval, and that he would "endeavor" to have her fulfill the promises made in it.

A second statement handed newsmen said the Board of Education had accepted the letter as a "sincere request and promise" of the girl and her father, and had re-instituted her effective today.

It has been the school's policy not to allow local newsmen to interview anyone or take pictures inside the building.

Blossom said she gave her a guide and told her she could visit the school but was to see him after the visit. Other out-of-state reporters have been given the same privileges.

Blossom said she failed to meet him at the appointed time. Miss Samuels said she tried to reach him by telephone but was unable to do so. Blossom said when he learned she was still at the school, he instructed Matthews to send her back to his office.

"When you came back to the office, you had broken every commitment in the book," Blossom told Miss Samuels.

I did not violate any agreement," she exclaimed. "When you called me back, it was not to discuss any culpability of mine. I want to make it quite clear it was not a violation of a commitment. It was because you felt that if you opened the school to the general press, it might disrupt the ALBANY, N.Y. (UP)—A bill to increase the legal limit of racing days in New York from 210 to 215 appeared headed for almost sure passage by the State Legislature.

Miss Samuels said she also attended a school assembly, after leaving at the lunch hour.

"Mr. Matthews had invited me because he felt I would be able to learn the spirit of the school," she explained.

That drew a charge from Blossom that she "tried to go around me" and did not return for the appointment with him as scheduled.

"I want to get this clear — I called her out of school," Blossom said. "I told this lady I did not want to be put in the position of breaking a commitment to the local people."

Blossom said the taking of pictures was a "mistake," and said he had been assured by an editor of the Times that it would not use the pictures or any of her conversations with the people in the school.

When Miss Samuels said she did not want to continue the discussion, Blossom asked her if she had been invited to the new conference.

"We just called the local people, the ones on our list," he said. Blossom said he would take the matter of newsmen and photographers visiting Central High to the board of education. He said it might meet later this week.

State Sen. Marshal Shackelford Jr. of El Dorado said in one of the panel discussions Monday he does not expect the 1959 legislature to pass any new taxes. Instead, he said, he expects the general assembly to concentrate on making sure the state is getting its money's worth in existing taxes.

The senator said he expects the 1959 legislature will require agencies which received increased tax revenues to explain where they are spending the money.

State Sen. Jack Shelton of Monticello said pressure groups are necessary to help the legislature. They provide information the senators wouldn't get otherwise, he explained.

Highway look of the future calls for concrete.

The highway ride of 1975 is here!

New-type, sound-conditioned concrete for your new Interstate System of super-roads

There's not a "thump" to be heard when you drive this continuous-laid concrete. It has been developed to meet the 1975 standards set for America's greatest highway building program—41,000 miles—now under way.

The Interstate Highway System in Arkansas, 823 miles of the finest roads ever to be built.

Almost like riding above the pavement instead of on it. You'll say this new-type concrete gives you the smoothest, most quiet ride ever. Don't waste time listening for the "thumps." There simply aren't any. This new pavement is laid without interrupting joints. Then only the finest cushion spaces are sawed into the surface. You never feel or hear them.

Roughening or flaking of the surface due to freezing, thawing and deicers can't happen—due to a modern process called "air entrainment." A special granular base under the concrete makes permanent that new smoothness... that good, flat, solid feel under you. Studies show you save up to 4% on car expenses—gas, oil, brakes, steering—for you don't have a "phat" surface "drag."

Sound reasons why new-type concrete is the preferred pavement for the new Interstate System.

Mrs. Eisenhower Ends Vacation

WASHINGTON (UP) — Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower was back home today, slightly unplanned and five pounds thinner from a 16-day western vacation.

The First Lady said she had a "wonderful time" during the two weeks she spent at the exclusive Maine Chance women's beauty resort in Phoenix, Ariz. She also spent two days visiting her ailing mother in Denver, Colo.

The First Lady's sister, Mrs. Gordon Moore, who accompanied Mrs. Eisenhower on the western trip, said they hoped to visit Maine Chance again.

DOROTHY DIX

Summer Might Be Lousy With Future In-Laws.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My daughter is attending college where she met, and fell in love with, a fellow student who will graduate in June. We have met the boy and like him very much, so that's no problem. They plan to be married next year after graduation he is going back to his home town where he has a job waiting. He wants our daughter to go back with him and get a job for the summer, so she can meet his folks. My husband and I object vigorously. For one thing, no invitation has been sent by his mother and without that I most certainly wouldn't permit her to go. They aren't even formally engaged at the present time. Is my reaction justified or am I, as she says, "old fashioned?"

MRS. T. G.

temper. Mark this off as one of those things that just "happened." Since everyone is sorry, forget it.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My husband and I were very happy for the first five years of our marriage, but now he's changed. If I leave the house even to go to my girl friend's, he says I'm meeting a man. He goes down to the club house to spend many an evening with his buddies and I don't dare complain.

Dear Roxie: Pardon my suspicious mind, but hubby apparently wants to keep you out of circulation so you won't hear too much of his activities. It's an old trick to ease one's own conscience by accusing someone else of wrongdoing.

Dear Dorothy Dix: We have two little girls, 8 and 5. Should I treat both children the same, or allow the older one privileges because of her age? Now I make them both go to bed at the same time, play with the same children, eat the same food and my older daughter seems to resent it.

Dear Mrs. L. T.: And well she might! Age does hold some privileges and the sooner the fact is established, the better. After all, your older girl is in a different class at school, has friends her own age and certainly shouldn't be held to the activities of a child three years younger. Let her grow up.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I've been going with Boyd for seven years; ever since we graduated from high school. All this time he never held a job, lied to me about it and was very jealous. Egged on by my family, and my own common sense, I broke off with him. In the six months since the breakup, he has changed miraculously. He has a good job, is saving money, and attends church — something he never did. He realizes how wrong he was and wants me to give him another chance. I still have a great deal of feeling for him and would love to go back to him, but am afraid of what my family family were injured.

The Air Force sped a decontamination team into town but eased the fears of the populace later by announcing there was no radioactivity and that the bomb actually was harmless from nuclear standpoint.

But Capt. James J. Brady, public information officer at SAC headquarters in Omaha, Neb., disclosed that the bomb that was ejected by accident from a Hunter Air Force Base B47 jet bomber was a "nuclear component." He explained there was no radiation.

Bliss of torn and twisted metal from the bomb were being hunted by Air Force searchers and appeals went out to souvenir hunters to return the scraps they picked up in the minutes after the accident happened.

Brady said, however, that the bomb lacked only the fuse that is necessary to create the fission to make an atomic explosion.

The incident brought immediate concern among high ranking congressmen and brought fresh demands from left wing elements in Britain for banning U.S. guided missile bases there.

"This incident is a clear indication of the dangers involved in stationing the H-bomb here," Sir Frederick Messer, leader of the Laborite faction which opposes the H-bomb, said in London. Two other laborites announced they would bring up the question in Parliament.

Warriors Win Over Hawks in Pro Play

By UNITED PRESS

The Philadelphia Warriors clinched third place by defeating the St. Louis Hawks Tuesday to complete the National Basketball Association's Eastern Division playoff lineup, and the Western Division lineup will be determined tonight following the outcome of the Cincinnati-Minneapolis game.

The Warriors eliminated the New York Knicks by their 108-101 win over the Hawks, the regular-season Western Division champions. The Knicks actually saw their last chance for a playoff berth go by the boards by bowing to the Eastern Division champion Boston Celtics, 126-118.

The Eastern Division playoffs get underway Saturday at Syracuse, N.Y., with the second-place
Nationals meeting the third-place Warriors. The second game will be played at Philadelphia Sunday, and a third game, if necessary, will be played at Syracuse March 18.

The Western Division situation was a bit more complex. Second and third place hinge on the outcome of tonight's game. If the Royals beat the Lakers, they will tie with the Detroit Pistons for second place, which would mean a coin-tossing to determine the opening site of the best-of-three series.

If the Lakers upset the Royals then the Pistons will clinch second place and host the first game
Saturday. In that case, the second and third (if it is necessary), games of the series will alternate between Cincinnati and Detroit on Sunday and next Tuesday.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Non-Striker Tells of Beating

By DICK WEST
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—A non-striking Kohler Co. worker said today that a beating his 63-year-old father suffered in the early days of the United Auto Workers' marathon strike against the company started a decline in the older man's health that led to his death.

William Bersch Jr., Sheboygan, Wis., testified before the Senate Rackets Committee about a 1954 assault against both him and his father, also a Kohler employee. He said his assailant was Guinac, a Detroit Michigan, U. A. W. employee, but that he could not identify who beat his father.

Guinac, now living in Detroit, is wanted in Sheboygan, the city where the Kohler plant is located, on charges of assault against both Bersch and his father, Democratic Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan has refused efforts by Wisconsin authorities to extradite the union man.

The committee also has summoned Guinac for questioning. It also requires a special court order that would protect him from arrest while in Washington, thereby keeping Wisconsin authorities from having him arrested while here.

Joseph L. Rauh Jr., DAW attorney, has put into the committee's records a certificate signed by the elder Bersch's physician which listed heart trouble as the cause of his death. Sen. Karl E. Mundt (R-S.D.), a committee member countered with an affidavit, from the doctor who examined the elder Bersch the night of his beating. This doctor said the man's injuries could have contributed to the heart condition.

Bersch Jr. told the committee his father "worked regularly" until the July 4, 1954, beating. After that, the younger Bersch said, his father worked only two weeks and was hospitalized eight times.

Bersch said his own injuries received from men who attacked him and his father at a gasoline station, did not require hospital attention.

Bersch said he had joined the United Auto Workers Union before the Kohler strike began, and stayed away from his job while the union conducted mass picketing of the plant. But he returned to work after picketing was limited, he said.

The beating took place while he was working part-time at the gasoline station in nearby Sheboygan Falls, he said.

Cows Outnumber Vermont People

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UP)—Cows still outnumber people in Vermont.

Economist Thurston Adams said today the latest count shows 421,000 cows and 376,000 persons.

Blind Arkansan and Dog Back Together

By PAT HERMAN
United Press Staff Correspondent

London (UP)—Six months of separation ends today for blind American student Jeff Davis Duty and Binney, the seeing-eye dog he had to give up to British Quarantine when he arrived here last September.

Binney's six month quarantine caused loud protests on both sides of the Atlantic, but Duty said today he thinks the incident helped Anglo-American relations.

"I wouldn't have come if I hadn't hoped something good would come out of this — and I think it has" — the Arkansas-born Fulbright scholar said.

"Of course it's been tough without Binney, although I knew they probably would quarantine her before I came," he noted in a suit drawn untouched by six months of living and studying in London.

But without her I have come to depend on the kindness of so many English people. And they have gotten to know me. I think that this has broken down their idea of the typical brash, loud, overly self-confident American."

Binney will be the guest of honor tonight at a party in the student house where Duty lives with other students of the London School of Economics.

Because of the publicity over their separation, Binney has received fan mail, gifts of dog biscuits and free care at kennels in nearby Surrey. She even received a cable from Duty's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Duty of Rogers, Ark.

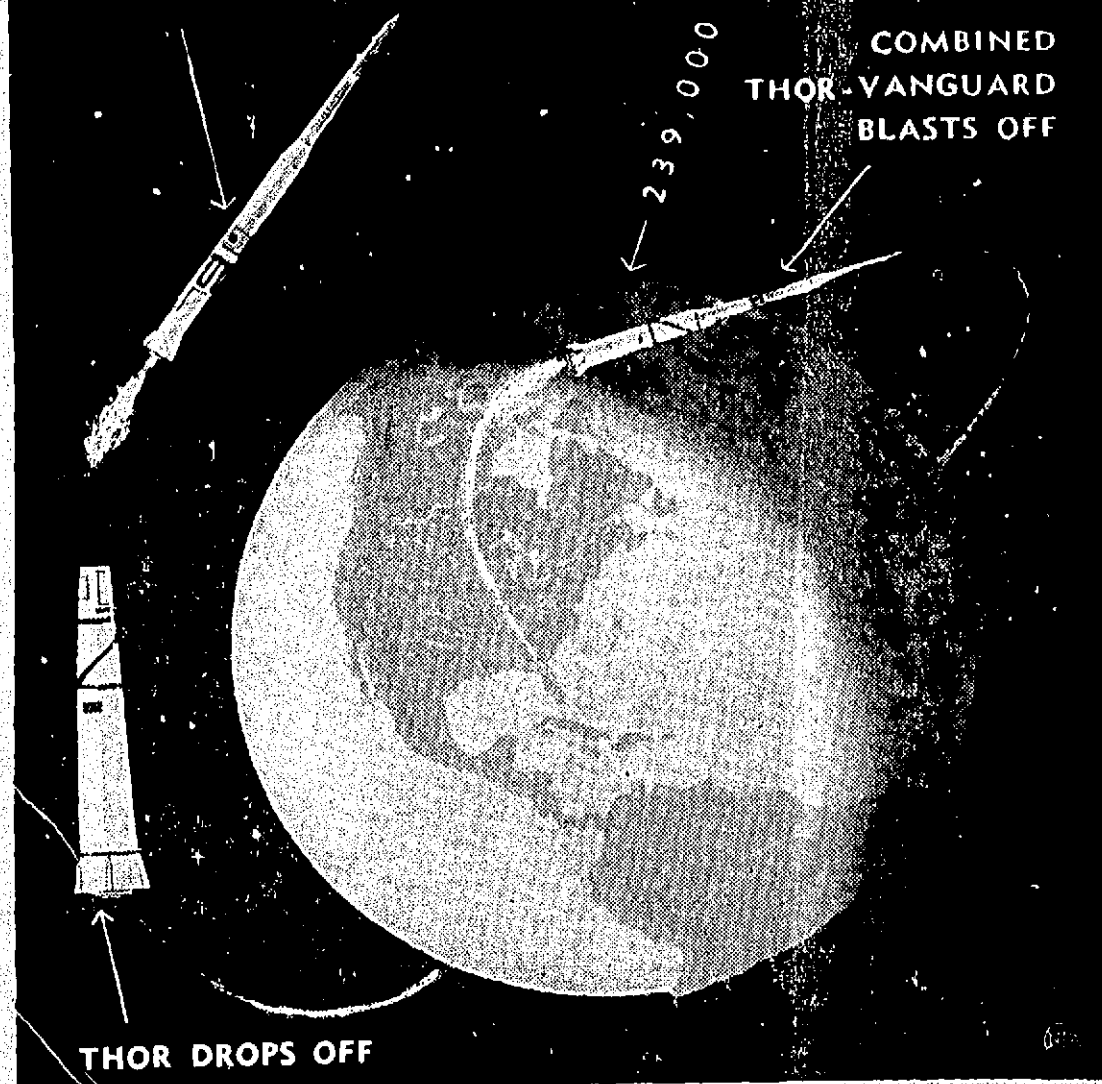

Duty said his six-year-old black and tan guide dog has come to enjoy her fame. "The more flash-bulbs popping, the better she likes it," he said.

Duty said he has managed to get along with human guides while traveling in England, Wales and the Continent in the last six months.

"My roommate, Jim Silver, has been wonderful," he said. "But no matter how competent the person, there is no substitute for a guide dog."

SPOTTER CHARGE HITS THE MOON AFTER 2 1/3 DAY FLIGHT FROM EARTH

VANGUARD TAKES OVER; AIMS FOR MOON

SHOOTING THE MOON—The Air Force, according to Lt. Gen. D. L. Putt, believes it can hit the moon with a rocket this year provided the project receives an immediate go-ahead. Putt, Deputy Air Force Chief of Staff for Research, told Congress that the attempt would be made with a combination of its Thor intermediate missile and the Navy's Vanguard.

Artist's drawing above shows how the flight might be made. The combined Thor-Vanguard would probably be launched from Cape Canaveral, Fla. The Vanguard would take over once the massive Thor had carried it far out into space where the pull of gravity is almost negligible. In order to hit the moon, Vanguard would have to go seven miles a second, the speed needed to break away from the earth's grasp. That's roughly 25,200 miles an hour, compared with the estimated 18,000 miles an hour which Explorer and Sputnik 11 are traveling.

Rate of Child Crime Varies Over World

By GAY PAULEY
United Press Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UP)—The rate of child crime varies from country to country, but its causes are universal, says a British woman magistrate who specializes in juvenile court work.

"Lack of home training. The amount of money young folks earn without any instruction on what to do with it. Divorced parents and divided loyalties. All these are reasons," said the justice, Mrs. Gertrude Muriel Penhale Bishop.

"A secure family, both mother and father there. A home without heavy drinking and gambling. A home where religion has a role. These help, keep a child headed right," she said.

"Never Sure."

"Yet one can never be sure."

"I've had fearful parents say to me, 'I don't know why my boy got into trouble. He had everything he wanted.'"

"It is just as bad to over-indulge a child as to deprive it."

Magistrate Bishop, whose home base is Leicester, is in this country for 10 weeks study of our juvenile courts and prison methods from New York to California.

Prison reform is another of her specialties.

Justice Bishop said "There is a great deal of teen-age crime in my country; how it compares with yours I don't know yet."

"Some of the things we read in the papers, at home and here, are startling. But it is very important for us to remember juvenile crime is not new. What is new, is our universal conscience and concern."

Approved Schools

She said the British Home Office runs approved schools where many of the juvenile delinquents, boys or girls, are sent for regular school work, medical care and emotional guidance.

"FCO, British officials, magistrates included, advocate strong measures to handle the delinquent," she said. "But I'm in the minority here," she continued. "I do not believe in violence in any form."

EASTER SEALS—A pretty little girl, looking forward to discarding her crutches in favor of roller skates, features one of two designs for the 1958 Easter Seals. The seals—messengers of hope for crippled children—will be mailed to more than 38 million American homes when the month long Easter Seal appeal gets under way on March 6. The seals are in bright Easter color tones of rose and blue.

Two Students Hit by Truck

SEARCY (UP)—A Cabot High School student was hospitalized here Monday after he and another boy were hit by a truck as they practiced running for the school track team.

State Trooper Roy Ross, identified the boy admitted to a Searcy hospital as James Garnet, 17. The other youth was Charles Finley, 17, who was treated and released.

The police said driver of the truck was Dan Flowers, 21, Negro of Cabot.

Flowers told them the accident was on a hill about 2 1/2 miles from the school. He said a fender brushed Finley and a wheel passed over Garnet.

Flowers said he was driving at 30 miles an hour.

"But I'm not for leniency with drivers," he said. "It is difficult to administer justice, but I think our aim always should be to keep the child from becoming a habitué."

Dressmakers Agree to a New Contract

NEW YORK (UP)—Agreement on a new contract to end the six-day strike of 103,000 dressmakers was announced today.

Ratification of the contract terms was expected in little time to send the dressmakers back to work on Easter Friday in more than 2,000 shops Wednesday.

David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union said the three-year agreement provides for wage and other money increases of 11 per cent each year, of which eight cents each year will be a direct wage increase.

Louis Rubin, speaking for five employers' associations, said "the new contract is very costly, but we feel a new day has arrived."

The union remains on strike against non-union shops, mostly contractors in Pennsylvania, and a group of unionized contractors, also in Pennsylvania, who have broken away from their employers' associations and thus are not bound by today's agreement.

Dubinsky said "all must adopt the union standards."

Dubinsky especially praised former Sen. Herbert H. Lehman, one of two mediators appointed Friday by Mayor Robert F. Wagner, for his part in bringing settlement of the dispute which he described as "extremely complicated and difficult."

Affected by the settlement are most of the striking dressmakers, the New York City manufacturers and jobbers and the majority of contract shops working for them in seven states.

To Open Bids for Pine Bluff School

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—The Arkansas Board of Education will open bid April 7 for the Vocational-Technical School to be built at Pine Bluff.

The 1957 Legislature authorized the school and appropriated $500,000 for it. The state recently bought a 15-acre site at Pine Bluff for $45,000 with the city of Pine Bluff furnishing $15,000 to the amount.

He spoke slowly, as if he'd been waiting all day for a good listener. "Miss Henderson is wrong. What we are doing is not criminal. Let me ask you this: suppose tomorrow you hit upon a new soft drink that sweeps the country. You can make this sugar water for a penny, market it for two cents and thus make a neat profit. However, since you control it, if you find you can sell it for 10 cents, make a 900 per cent profit, which would you do?"

"Sell it for a dime, Mr. Wren, all this talk is getting us away from Parker and why you didn't come to the police."

"On the contrary, if I can make you understand that Miss Henderson is a crackpot, out to make her own type of fast dollar, then you can understand why I had to pay off Mr. Parker. I had a business deal with a man, weeks later he is shot. That obviously had nothing to do with me. Once I paid off, I was done with the matter. I never saw him again."

"There are three other concerns in this, do they all —"

"I handled this myself."

"When lit his pipe again. 'A good question. I met up with this former cop. I made the deal. When it turned sour I took full and sole responsibility. There's also the matter of pride. I didn't want the others to know I'd been taken in.'"

"So you shelled out four grand, just like that?"

"See here, Detective Wintino, I resent this questioning, as though I was a suspect or something. You're making a mountain out of a mole hill."

"I never said you were a suspect, and a dead man isn't a mole hill. I'm asking you: these questions because it may lead to somebody, and so on, until we hit the right one."

"Then I can be of little help. We first met at some bar on Sixth Avenue. I don't remember exactly. It dropped in for a quick beer and we started talking about some show on the TV. That was around the middle of March. After our first meeting, due to the nature of our business, we thought it best to meet on the street, usually at the corner of Fifty-fourth Street and —"

"As you can see all this has nothing to do with any shooting and it would be damn embarrassing to say the least. If it came to light, I'm not involved, don't drag me in."

"That isn't up to me to decide."

"I believe you said you're doing this on your own time. Same situation when you invaded the Data office. I don't know what you found, you said, but common sense has to be a factor in these cases. I hope and expect business men to take a common business deal with a man later found dead."

"What?"

"When pointed to Owens' man, 'You, although I must have been taken many years ago, I can see something about the other killing. I only skim through the papers. Well, you helped you, see?"

"What?"

News About the Current Recession

By UNITED PRESS

Vice President Nixon said he favored tax cuts over further significant increases in government expenditures to combat the recession. He spoke at the Commerce Department reported that total sales of retail stores in February dropped 3 per cent under January and 1 per cent from February, 1957.

Bradley D. Nash, a Commerce Department official, predicted that the 40-billion-dollar interstate highway program will be outmoded by the time it is completed. He said it will then be necessary to commence all over again with another gigantic program.

Kennecott copper Corp. announced further cutbacks at four of its U.S. mines. The move will reduce copper output by 3,300 tons monthly or 12 1/2 per cent from the current rate. Kennecott said it wants to put supply and demand "more nearly" in balance.

The Boston Federal Reserve Bank cut its discount rate 1/2 percentage point to 2 1/2 per cent in line with similar cuts put into effect last week by the federal reserve banks in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and Atlanta. The seven other federal reserve banks also are expected to drop to the lower rate.

Police Issue Up in Jacksonville

JACKSONVILLE (UP)—The city council meets Thursday evening in what might be a stormy session on who hires the police force.

Alderman John H. Harden hinted he and other council members would present some sort of proposal to Mayor Edward D. Schmidt. Harden said he didn't know if the mayor would agree, but said he thinks the mayor would have to go along with the plan.

Schmidt fired the police force Feb. 10 but the council objected and refused to pay the salaries of the four men the mayor hired to replace the displaced force.

The four later asked the state labor department to help them get paid but Monday the department declined to wait until after the council meeting, according to department attorney Harlan J. Pritzynan.

"You can do to shield me from any possible monetary action," said "waiting me to the door."

"You don't have to worry about that," he continued.
